Employee wellness

The ability to pay employees overtime, shift pay and expenses sooner, improves wellness and satisfaction.

A recent survey* highlighted the following employee expectations:

- 8-in-10 employees (80%) would prefer to have their pay automatically streamed into their bank account as they earn it. This is the future of 'always on' payroll.
- As the war for top talent continues, most employees (78%) agree that access to real-time pay, provided to them at no cost, would increase their loyalty to an employer.
- 81% of workers are likely to say they would take a job with an employer that provides access to real-time pay at no cost to them over an employer that does not.

How you benefit

With Faster Payments there is a large time saving for senior team members in terms of reviewing the payments, as this element is already conducted within the payroll review.

The process was very straightforward as the Income Group team did all of the work. We had one call to explain the process with the team involved and made a test payment before going live. For the time saving on our side, the initial set up was very straight forward.

How it compares to Earned Wage Access

According to PwC's employee wellness survey, almost half of all employees are currently stressed about their financial situation.

Offering ways to reduce this provides a solution to give people the power to manage their finances more effectively.

Earned Wage Access is a payroll scheme that allows employees to access their wages as soon as they earn them.

This gives employees the opportunity to withdraw up to 50% of their earned pay at any time, but with a cost of around £1.50 - £1.75 to the employee, each time a transfer is made.

IGsend incurs no employee charges, plus access can be given to 100% of the earned salary. It enables payroll teams to make instant, real-time payments, giving the control and flexibility to pay employees when required.
